The competitions aimed to provide students with an opportunity to showcase their skills and creativity. The students of B. Com (H) participated in the event with great zeal and enthusiasm. The competitions aimed to highlight the contributions of women in various fields. The competition was judged by a panel of experts; Dr Teena Hassija, Dr Rakesh Kumar and Ms Kaveri.

The ceremony began with an address by Dr. Teena Hassija, who discussed the importance of women's empowerment and the government's role in empowering women.

30 students participated in the poster competition in 15 teams of two members in each team. The poster making competition involved the creation of posters on various topics related to women empowerment. All of the students were able to exhibit their poster concepts. The criteria used to determine the winner were creativity and inattentiveness, originality of concepts, theme relevance, and presenting skills. The posters were displayed in a designated area, where students, faculty, and visitors had the opportunity to view and appreciate them. A group of two girls from B. Com (H) fourth semester named Gunjan Kumari and Kirti won the competition.

In the declamation competition 16 students participated enthusiastically. They delivered their views relevantly on the given theme with grace. The declamation competition was judged using five criteria: command of the subject, explanatory skills, clarity of ideas and thoughts, confidence level, and the beginning and end of the declamation.

The competitions were well attended, with a significant number of female students participating. The participants displayed a high level of skill and creativity and the quality of the work was impressive. Ms. Nishtha Garg, a first-year B. Com (H) student, won the battle with an amazing thought-sharing on the topic.

The winners received certificates of recognition for their outstanding work. The competitions were a great success and provided an excellent opportunity for students to showcase their skills and creativity. We thank all the participants, judges, and organizers for making the competitions a success and look forward to more such events in the future.
