Expert Lecture on “Universal Human Values” organized at J.C. Bose University

An expert lecture on Universal Human Values was conducted by Brahma Kumari Neeru on 10th September 2025 as part of the Induction Program. The session aimed to introduce students to the foundational principles of human values and ethics, emphasizing the importance of self-awareness, empathy, truthfulness, and responsibility in both personal and professional life. Brahma Kumari Neeru explained that values are inner strengths that help individuals remain stable and composed under challenging circumstances. She discussed the practical application of universal values in daily decision-making and encouraged participants to introspect before acting by asking themselves simple guiding questions such as—Is it truthful? Is it respectful? Is it necessary?

The lecture also included an interactive segment where participants engaged in a short guided meditation to experience mindfulness and emotional regulation firsthand. Through this, students learned the importance of maintaining inner peace and clarity amidst external pressures. The session concluded with a Q&A discussion, where concerns about applying ethical principles in real-world scenarios were addressed. Participants appreciated the calm and reflective nature of the session and expressed a desire for more such interactive workshops focusing on conflict resolution and value-based living.

Overall, the lecture by Brahma Kumari Neeru was insightful and impactful, helping students understand that Universal Human Values are not just moral concepts but practical tools for personal growth and harmonious coexistence. It was recommended that similar sessions be organized regularly and that follow-up workshops or reflection activities be integrated into the induction program to sustain learning and application.
